

GRANITE STATE HONORS GREAT BATTLESHIP

$6,000 Silver Service Presented to the New Hampshire at Portsmouth.

SPEECH BY GOV. FLOYD

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 8.—Portsmouth was decked in holiday attire to-day for celebration of one of the most important events in the annals of the Granite State. The occasion was the presentation by the citizens of New Hampshire of a magnificent silver service to the bright new battleship bearing the name of the state, now lying peacefully at anchor in the harbor. The gift represents an outlay of $6,000.

Resolutions had been extended to over 200 people, prominent in state and naval affairs, and thousands of others, including numerous residents from neighboring resorts, flocked to the city to witness the presentation. Although the event was not to take place until this afternoon, the guests arrived early in the day in order to visit the ship and gain all the silver service, which is now on exhibition.

The presentation of the gift to the ship took place at 10 o'clock, when the governor of the state, was followed by a complimentary call in the evening by Captain Charles M. Winslow, commander of the ship. The ship will remain here until Wednesday.

FIRE WAGON KNOCKS DOWN AGED MAN

Samuel H. Butterfield, aged sixty, of No. 129 Main street, Charlestown, was knocked down by a fire department wagon, carrying Acting District Chief Rieker, on Monday afternoon. The accident occurred while the latter was responding to an alarm bell. Butterfield sustained numerous contusions and abrasions to the body.

CHAPTER VIII.

What Did Nora Harding Know?

AGED and inexperienced at this new revelation, James tried for a moment to recall his last night's dream, as he watched Nora's face. He returned to the side of Ruth, looking down at her and murmuring trying to explain was quickly reached.

Drove Him Frantic

Running down, he gathered her up in his arms, carrying her like a helpless form as easily as if it had been a child. From the room into the hall. Nora was excited in so instant that she never noticed that she had been taken into the room. She was looking at him with a look of intense interest at that moment.

He Saw that He Had Failed to Take

There was a splash of blood on his white shirt, and he saw that he had failed to take the money. He was looking at her with a look of intense interest at that moment.

He Was a Man of Few Words

He was a man of few words, and he was looking at her with a look of intense interest at that moment.

He Recognized Wilfred Reed and Shook

That Scrap of Paper!

And then the thought of his own deed in the tragedy crowded upon him. That scrap of paper! What could it mean? He believed that it was his, and he was looking at her with a look of intense interest at that moment.

The "Hair Grower" Fraud

One of the most glaring frauds in America to-day is the "hair grower" fraud.

Perhaps you have been a victim. You have all seen the pictures of women with hair touching the ground. You have read how this or that "tonic," "renewer," "grower" or what not was the cause of the wonderful growth.

You have seen the "before" and "after" pictures of men who, after being "treated," used some nostrum, and their hair sprouted like grass in May.

How many of you who tried these fraudulent preparations got any benefit from them?

How many women's hair grew down to their feet?

How many bald men renewed the growth of their hair?

The fraud is so bold and so widespread that the Ladies' Home Journal devotes nearly a page of its May (1908) issue to the subject.

Here are a few extracts from that paper:

"For the most part these 'hair tonics' are perfectly worthless, and when they are not worthless they are dangerous, contain what is called 'lead acetate,' which is at once poisonous and acts as a dye."

"There can be no question of the danger or worthlessness of most of these hair remedies. Women who use them are wasting their money in the purchase of them—and that is the least consideration—or is their use the cause of fearful danger."

No men or women ought ever to put anything on the scalp or hair unless they know positively what it is. Any doctor will tell you that.

Any doctor will also tell you that falling hair and hair troubles generally are overcome in two ways:

One way is to build up the health by proper exercise, plain food, deep breathing and right living generally.

The other way is to keep the scalp clean with a reliable preparation.

There is now being introduced in the drug stores a new scalp cleanser called Birt's Head Wash.

So far as we know, it is the only thing of the kind that is not secret.

The formula is printed upon every package.

Here it is: Refined Soap, White of Egg, Cocoon Cocoon Oil, Glycerin and Strychnine Acid.

You are invited to ask your physician or your druggist if there is a single thing in Birt's Head Wash that can injure the hair, or if there are any better ingredients known for making the scalp clean and soft and for making the hair lustrous.

Birt's Head Wash does not leave the hair dry like soap and shampoo.

There is just enough free Cocoon Oil in it to give the hair a lustre, but not enough to make it seem greasy.

After its use there is a feeling of freshness and cleanliness about the scalp that is difficult to describe.

Birt's Head Wash shows results at once.

It makes the scalp clean, and with a clean scalp hair stops falling out and hair troubles generally disappear.

There is nothing with which to compare it, and the only way to find out how good it is to try it.

Being new, some druggists may not have Birt's Head Wash in stock, but any druggist can get a supply from his wholesaler if you call his attention to the matter.

It should be remembered that this new preparation is equally good for men, women and children.

The three great forward steps in woman's housework are:

The modern range in place of the old fireplace and kettle;

The sewing machine in place of laborious hand-sewing;

Fels-Naptha soap, which makes it easy to wash clothes in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling or hard rubbing.

Of these three, Fels-Naptha saves the woman more back-breaking labor, more time, more money, and does more to make life pleasanter than either of the others.

At the very first, you can see how it saves time and labor, but perhaps you'll wonder how Fels-Naptha saves money.

In two ways: First it saves the cost of coal or gas to heat water and boil the clothes.

Then the clothes last longer when washed with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water.

Their fibre isn't weakened by boiling nor strained by hard rubbing.

You can't realize just what a help Fels-Naptha is until you've tried it in your own washing.

Why not begin next washday?

Fels-Naptha easy way of washing in place of the tiresome, tedious back-breaking method.

TWO STAR PLAYERS OF CARDINAL TEAM

COLLINS OUT TO BEAT M'LEAN IN 25-MILE RACE

Since Collins beat Moran last week and convinced his friends that he had at last regained his wonderful speed form they are confident that the time has come for Moran's downfall, and a good part of the shoe city will be at the trackside to see their star rider wrest the honors from the Chisum man.

Spring a surprise, as he is known to possess a lightning speed as a sprinter and could easily take the lead in the 100-yard racing unopposed, and it's only a question of his holding to his motor to gauge in the 23-mile Janet.

It will be the first time Collins has faced a Northern prepared to make his travel faster than he did before in order to win out, the man who has counted on lowering his opponent's color and therefore claim the first place to meet Bobby Walthour, who is to return from abroad shortly.

best of the local men and several others will compete, will proceed the event, which should eclipse anything on the card this season.

By Wex Jones

READ in paper that one-fifth the earth's surface is unexplored. This is disagreeable, in view of the closeness together of people in other parts of the world. Decided to explore part of the missing fifth. Map shows Africa very unexplored in centre. Start for there tomorrow and compile directory and street guide of that part of Dark Continent. Why "dark," by the way? Probably on account of gloom cast by vast number of natives.

Pictures in papers as "Intrepid" Somerville Man Who Will Explore Africa. They insist "Why should he explore at home?" That might have been better, but I have already bought a road map of South Africa and I don't like to waste as store refuses to take it back because I drew no proposed route on it. I red ink and also tore the binding a little in trying to slip a mosquito with it.

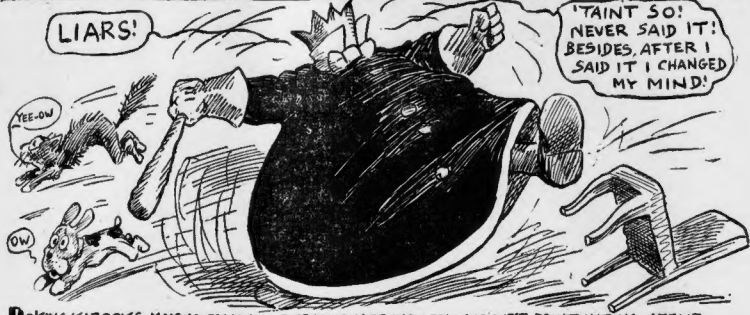

Africa at last! Edge of it looks quite explored. Police and street cars in great numbers. Asked a policeman which street I should take to the exploring grounds. He replied, "You'll be arrested if you take any street here. We've only got one road to go round it. It's always useful."

Ten days' journey in train. No stations for thirty miles. Good place to explore. Jumped off car and began work. Met large native who did his share toward discovering the continent. Asked him his name, residence, name of city and country. Very favorable replies, but couldn't write them down. Scrambled to get out of ivory dice in a tin box, spilling by large spider. Can't stand spiders, so moved into heart of Africa.

Explored vast tract of country today, but don't know what to do with it. Same as any other country—rice, trees, etc. Observed large lion in the offing and returned explorations on the run. Then into native village. Heard many sounds like noise made by a boar as they lost going at full speed. Natives don't understand exploration. Think I came to settle in village. Foolish thought, when I was rarely able to settle in Somerville.

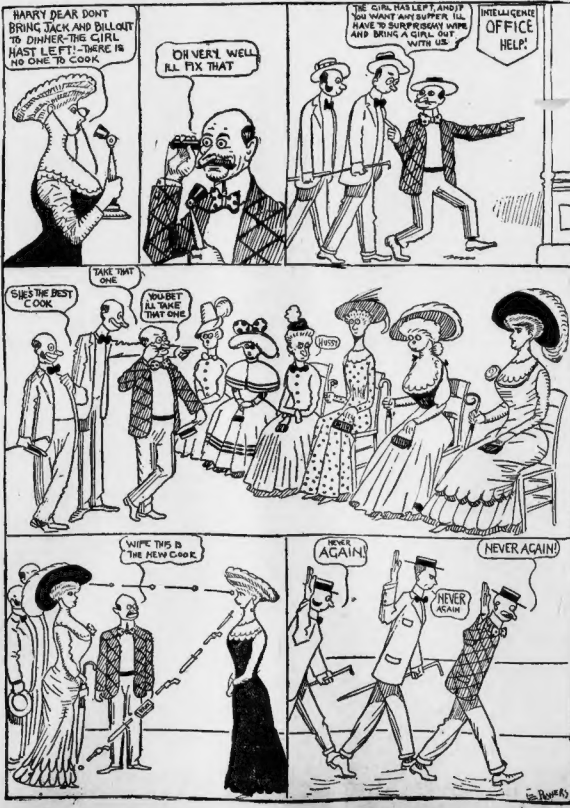

Giraffes are real. Say come today and they looked just like their pictures. Climbed up one and found their necks were a thick net of red and yellow. Stopped to rest. Rubbed over there and announced to the settlers that I had discovered them. Mayor said, "Come this way. Your Excellency, and the city shall honor you. When I walked in, he shut the door behind me. Place looks very much like Somerville."

Later. It is hellish and the jailer only says "Yes, yes," when I talk to him.

You Will Never Find It in Any Calling Until You Seek It Within Yourself

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

WHATEVER you set out to do, know this: If it is a good, not a bad, thing, it will make your success. It is what you feel, what you think, what you do—not any one of those, but all of them. You may do all that the situation requires, but if you have no feeling in the matter, your deeds will be almost barren of result. You may feel strongly, yet if you do nothing your seed of feeling will not take root. You may feel and do, yet if your thoughts are not centered on what you do your work will be half success. Are you a musician by profession? All the technique, all the knowledge, all the industry of a lifetime of hard study will never make you a great artist, unless you feel your music. Are you a traveling man or a commercial voyager? Then remember it is not what you have in your sample case or trunk, it is not the condition of your customer's trade, but it is what lies in you which determines the result of your trip. Confidence in your own ability, a forceful, direct manner, an interest in your own goods and in your customer—these are the winning qualities. But they count for nothing unless you have the "spark" of success in your own mind. Success is not a matter of money and circumstance. Think of one thing at a time. Put your whole mentality, your whole spirit into one thing and work it into the matter at hand. Be direct, and send your thought as straight as an arrow to the target of your desire. All of success lies in you. You need never ask any man's aid or counsel if you set all your forces to work. As well ask another to walk for you as to help you to success. Demand your success.

Be direct, and send your thought as straight as an arrow to the target of your desire. All of success lies in you. You need never ask any man's aid or counsel if you set all your forces to work.
